Testing - What to Expect

CAROTID ULTRASOUND INSTRUCTIONS

A carotid ultrasound or carotid duplex test is a sonogram of the arteries in your neck. For this test, you will be lying on your back for up to an hour while one of our cardiovascular technologists scans the arteries in both sides of your neck. To make your test as pleasant an experience as possible, please help us by following these guidelines: Do not wear a turtleneck or other high-necked shirt or top. If you have a mobility problem where lying still and/or on your back is an issue, please tell our scheduler or the technologist.
